Quotations on the Leadin Pro ucts, In Dem ind

Rosion, Manch 1 .- Butter is very stendy, with a fair demand for the best marks at michanged prices. Northern ereamery, 254-926c; western creamery, 2567251/c; dairy, 20@22c.

Cheese is quiet, but the market holds very firm, both here and abroad. York state, 140(14)ger Vermont twins, 131/262 14c; Liverpool is quoted unchanged at

The egg market is still very much demoralized, and storage eggs art especially weak. The offerings are very large, and the demand is only moderate. The better grades are also feeling the effect of increased receipts, and prices are 364c lower than a week ago. Choice hennery and nearby, 19@21c; eastern, 17619c; western, 16@17c; refrigerator,

Rusiness has been good in the local fruit and produce market. Dealings in general have been larger than in several weeks and the buying has had more rnap than at any other time since the beginning of the year. Supplies have not been excessive and the increased buying has caused a general hardening

The improvement in the demand for apples has been especially noticeable. They have moved steadily for the past two or three weeks. Dealers who a little while ago could hardly get $4 a barrel for the best grades of Baldwins, have within the past week paid that price for them for shipment south, for the apple market in the south this year is unusually good, because of a falling off in the New York crop, upon which the south is largely dependent.

Cranberries are nearly out of the market and the few lots that remain are sold at $20@22 a barrel and $7@7.50 a crate. Arrivals of strawberries are gradually increasing, but so is the demand, and the best lots sell at 35@50c

Potatoes are steady. Receipts of Maine stock have been larger, but the demand has been correspondingly better. The market is still overstocked with Prince Parent Island steek, and he most eases they have to be forest off for what they will bring. The best call for sweets has been for fresh arrivals in baskets; barrel stock sweets ception rather than the rule.

Cabbages have moved up and cauliflowers are higher and firm. There has been a good demand for celery at the advanced quotations. Cucumbers are scarce, high and very firm. All kinds of greens are higher and squashes have advanced. Tomatoes are not at all plentiful and they still command very high prices. The best string beans go at $6.50 a crate, but a good many are so poor that they have to sell for considerably less. Rhubarb is more plenty and a little lower. Turnips are steady. Carrots, parsnips and radishes are higher, but new bunch beets have had a rather sharp drop.

Potatoes-Aroostook Green mountains, 65@68c a bushel; Hebrons, 63@ 65c; rose, 60@62c; Prince Edward Island reds, 60c; chenangoes, 50@55c; sweets, Jersey double heads, $1.75@ 2.50 a barrel; vinelands, $2.50@3; baskets, $5c@$1.

"Then came Collier's Weekly, and we quote from their columns the fol-

"Collier's will hereafter accept no advertisements of beer, whiskey, or alcoholic liquors; no advertisements of patent medicines; no medical advertisements or advertisements making claims to medicinal effect; no investment advertising promising extraordinary returns, such as stocks in mining, oil and rubber companies. The editor reserves the right to exclude any advertisement which he considers extravagant in claim, or offensive to good taste.'

"Munsey, who is usually the leader or among the leaders, came along at a later date, and the language he uses is significant:

"No more advertising contracts for whiskey, beer, or wine, and no more objectionable medical advertising, or objectionable anything, in fact, will be accepted for Munsey's

" 'Such a condition was not always true of Pearson's. "Some months ago we decided upon this house cleaning policy, and with each issue we cut out more and more of the class of advertising which (in the profession) is usually termed objectionable. " 'With the January issue, Pearson's Magazine goes out-CLEAN! We are glad to invite attention to this fact, because we believe that such a standard of advertising as is represented by the January Pearson's will prove to be for the best interests of our readers, of our advertisers, and therefore of ourselves."

that have 'reformed' their advertising policy during the past few years. There are others meriterious publications, like the Methodist papers, which have ansounced that they would decline, and have declined, thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of patent-medicine and objectionable advertising.

"The Century, and the two leading magazines for women, The Delineator and The Ladies' Home Journal, have declined this sort of advertising for many years, but when we began, nearly all the general magazines carried from five to twenty pages that we wouldn't accept at any price. "In the February issue of 1904, in this department, we stated: " 'We have omitted from the first all whiskey, liquor, and objectionable advertising. When we were asked if a high-priced champagne advertisement would be accepted we were not even tempted to take it. We believe in clean advertising, and we wish that all the high-grade magazines would decline these whiskey, liquor, and patent nostrum advertisements. They must come to it before long.'

"They did come to it! Good. Let's move on."

Even politicians have a growing respect for sobriety. When President McKinley was the guest of the city of Boston, at one of the greatest banquets ever given in the city, two thousand picked business and public men sat at the tables, and there was hot a drop of intoxicants visible. How did that come about? Bishop Malialieu, who invoked the divine blessing, says that the question of intoxicating drinks was left to Governor Crane, who decided as a was succeeded by Governor Bates, another Christian man, and when the Ancient and Honorable Articlery @104e: good. %10e; light, 7@84e; Company of London was feted in heavy fores, 5@8e good, 43-4@5e; light. ECSTASIES OF MECCA. Scene at the Annual Visitation of Mohammedan Pilgrims. Mecca, at the season of the annual visitation of Mohammedan pilgrims, is thus described in Everybody's in "With the Pilgrims to Mecca," translated from the narrative of Ibu Jubayr Ali of Bandar Adas: "Like a gigantic catafalque, somber, shrouded in mystery, the Kaaba rises out of the seething sea of white garbed humanity that crowds the great sacred square of Mecca. Its door is covered with plates of solid silver studded with silver nails. From the exterior of the roof, above a stone marking the sepulcher of Ishmael, which lies at the base of the northern wall, there projects a horizontal, semicircular rain spout five yards long, twenty-four inches wide, made of massive gold. Within the roof is supported by three columns of aloe wood; the walls are hung with red velvet alternating with white squares in which are written in Arabic the words, 'Allah-Jal-Jelalah' ('Praise to God, the Almighty'). The building is packed with pilgrims, praying, weeping, beside themselves in an ecstasy of passionate devotion. Mingled with their voices there rises from outside the chant of the Talbih, the song of the winding sheet, which every pilgrim must sing on entering Meeca, on donning the sacred Ihram, on entering the Haram, and on starting for Mina, the valley of desire, and Arafat, the mountain of compassion."

Great In His Line. Mr. Robert Barr once showed a portrait of Mark Twain to a silk merchant of Lyons. "Tell me who that is," Mr. Barr said. The merchant gazed at the he was a statesman." "Supposing you wrong in that, what would be your Christian man. Three years later he next guess?" asked Mr. Barr. "If he is not a maker of history he is perhaps a writer of it; a great historian, probably. Of course it is impossible for me to guess accurately except by accident, but I use the adjective 'great' because Governor Bates had the backbone to I am convinced this man is great in his offer a toest in a glass of pure water line, whatever it is. If he makes silk, he makes the best." Mr. Barr told the French merchant who the portrait represented and said, "You have summed him up in your last sentence."-London BARTON LANDING, News.

· The Egg Question

The problem of finding a cheap poultry food that will increase eggproduction during the winter when eggs are high has been solved by those farmers who purchase Green Cut Bone and Meat for their poultry.

C. S. Page of Hyde Park, Vt., grinds many thousand pounds annually of this article and is this year selling it for $3 50 per barrel of 200 pounds, freight prepaid to buyer's railroad station. There is now no necessity for going without this staple poultry food. If you cannot use a barrel yourself, got some of your neighbors to join in with you. You will find it valuable as an egg producer.

Now is the time to get your carriage or any other wheel vehicle painted in first-class shape and at reasonable prices.
